Clarification of News Report

We write in response to your request for clarification on the news article entitled “Dito CME, CloudSwyft to launch upskilling platform” posted in BusinessMirror (Online Edition) on January 13, 2021. The article reported in part that:

“Dito CME, the communications, media and entertainment arm of the Udenna Group, recently signed a joint venture agreement with CloudSwyft, the first Philippine-based education technology business to go global, to develop and launch Luna Academy.

The agreement was signed by Dennis A. Uy, chairman of Dito CME, Eric Alberto, President and CEO of Dito CME, and CloudSwyft Founder and CEO Dann Angelo De Guzman.

Dito said Luna Academy is a Philippines-focused online education platform, initially anchored on job-ready digital skills, that facilitates the timely upskilling of a generation of Filipinos by providing them world-class certifications, preparing them for exciting career opportunities that the new economy will provide in the years and decades ahead.

‘We want all Filipinos to be ready to embrace the rapid changes especially in the realm of technology and digital transformation,’ Uy said during the joint venture agreement signing.

‘With Luna Academy, we have found the perfect initiative to do just that. Through this platform, we aim to provide an avenue for affordable and convenient learning, skills training and online certifications that are tailor fit for Filipinos who seek more opportunities to move further forward.’

We wish to clarify that Dito CME Holdings Corp. (the “Company”) executed a non-binding term sheet (instead of a Joint Venture Agreement) with CloudSwyft to possibly develop and launch Luna Academy, a Philippines-focused online education platform (as described in the article). The Company is working towards executing a binding and definitive joint venture agreement on the possible venture and shall disclose updates as appropriate.

With regard to the statements of Mr. Uy on Luna Academy, the same are confirmed. The Company wishes to clarify, however, that Mr. Uy is Chairman and CEO of the Company and Mr. Alberto is the President of the Company.
